ISLAND LODGE

A former military base on an island off the coast of Stockholm has put down its guns and gone green, with Island Lodge, which gives camping a luxe spin. Yes, there are tents, but they boast plush beds and hardwood floors, and a crackling wood stove inside keeps the air from getting too chilly. By day, guests fish, sail or forage for mushrooms, then freshen up in an outdoor shower with sweeping North Sea views. Dinner is served at a wooden table set with china, ranging from locally sourced crayfish to elk. And the original military buildings haven't gone to waste - one old bunker is now a wine-tasting room.
